BEDFORD HOUSE SOLD.

Rumor has it that the famous Bedford House has been sold to a company of Pittsburgh Capitalists. They expect to begin to tear down the old structure and erect a modern garage in its stead for the purpose of taking care of the Ford auto business only. The Ford Company has objected to any agency carrying anything but the Ford car and all its supplies. It is the object of this new concern to keep all the parts of the Ford cars only and will be in position to build the Fords in this new plant, or rather assemble them here. As we understand the arrangement now, this will be the only place in the County where Fords may be bought and the only place where supplies may be obtained, and a complete supply at that.

PRESIDENT FLAYS ALL HIGH PRICES

Expects Every Business Man Not a Slacker to Be at His Side During War.

MEANS VICTORY OR DEFEAT

"Profits and Patriotism Not to Be Spoken of Together,"—Ship Owners Denounced—High Ocean Rates "Almost Insupportable."

Washington.—President Wilson appealed to the country's business interests to put aside every selfish consideration and to give their aid to the nation as freely as those who go out to offer their lives on the battlefield.

In a statement addressed to the coal operators and manufacturers he gave assurance that just prices will be paid by the Government and the public during the war, but warned that no attempt to extort unusual profits will be tolerated.

"Your patriotism," said the President's appeal, "is of the same self-denying stuff as the patriotism of the men dead and maimed on the fields of France, or it is no patriotism at all. Let us never speak, then, of profits and patriotism in the same sentence."

"I shall expect every man who is not a slacker to be at my side throughout this great enterprise. In it no man can win honor who thinks of himself."

The President declared there must be but one price for the Government and the public. He expressed confidence that business generally will be found loyal to the last degree, and that the problem of wartime prices, which he declared, will "mean victory or defeat," will be solved rightly through patriotic co-operation.

In unmeasured terms, however, Mr. Wilson condemned the shipowners of the country for maintaining a schedule of ocean freight rates which has placed "almost insupportable obstacles" in the path of the Government.

Coal production and other industries for whose products the Government has negotiated price agreements are not taken up in detail by the President, his appeal dealing only with the general principles involved in the determination of war prices.

PARADE OF GUARDS APPROVED.

War Department Will Interpose No Objections to Plans.

Washington.—Officials of the War Department said that there is no objection to any parade which New York may wish to arrange for its National Guard as a means of stimulating public interest before they are drafted into Federal service.

Until the guardsmen are actually drafted into the Federal service on August 5 the State of New York needs no authority from the Federal Government to hold a parade.

FRENCH COIN FOR SAMMIES.

U. S. Takes No Chances of U-Boats Stealing Soldiers' Pay.

Washington.—American soldiers sent to France will not be paid in gold or American currency, the War Department announced but will have their choice of French money at current exchange rates or a check which can be mailed home or cashed as desired.

For execution of the plan a large credit has been established abroad, and the American Government will draw upon it as needed. This, it was pointed out, will preclude any possibility of the Germans sinking or capturing money on its way to cash pay warrants.

U. S. TROOPS OFF FOR FRONT.

Quartermaster Corps Has Many Large Problems to Solve.

With the American Army in France, Pershing's boys crossed France from the camps near the French seaport, where they landed, to the new permanent base.

It was a triumphal procession. The men traveled in trains carrying one thousand each. The troop trains did not pass through Paris.

STOPS GERMAN INSURANCE.

President Eliminates Channel of Information Used by Spies.

Washington.—The President issued a proclamation which is to prevent military information regarding the movement and armament of American vessels reaching German agents through inspection of these vessels by representatives of insurance companies organized in Germany and which have been transacting business in this country since the outbreak of the war.

Father Daniel O'Shea of Sheridan, Pa., is visiting his sister, Mrs. Bridget T. Clair.

PARTNER HELD FOR MURDER

Suspected With Worry Over Debt, Auto Tragedy Laid to Survivor

DEBT OWED TO THE WOMAN

Wealthy Coal Operator Is Formally Charged With Killing His Partner, Wife and Son in Sunday's Auto Tragedy.

Ebensburg, Pa.—George C. Tompkins, 38 year old, wealthy coal operator, who was formally charged by County Detective Roscoe Custer with the murder of Edmund I. Humphries, 45 years old, of Carrolltown, president of the Newborn Coal Company; his wife, Mrs. Carrie Humphries, and their 15-year-old son, Edmund I. Humphries, Jr., near Carrolltown, had been despondent because of a debt of $1,000 owed Mrs. Humphries, and that the Humphries family and Tompkins were on their way to Philadelphia, where the latter intended to mortgage his property to pay the alleged debt, was the statement made by Sheriff W. E. Mulhollen. Sheriff Mulhollen said that he got his information from Tompkins' business associates in Carrolltown.

Sheriff Mulhollen regards his latest information in connection with the triple murder as the final link of circumstantial evidence which, he asserts, may lead to the positive identification of the murder of murderers.

Business papers which were in the automobile are giving Tompkins some concern. They have been carefully examined by officers for a clue to the establishing of a motive for the killings. That Tompkins was dissatisfied with some of the arrangements by which he received a share in the Newborn Coal Company is known.

The discovery of an automatic revolver, with the handle covered with blood and hair, and 17 loaded shells hidden in bushes near an old stone fence, within 30 feet of the spot where Humphries' body was found; the finding of footprints near the scene of the triple murder and a witness who saw an unidentified man, with his face covered with blood, in a cornfield near the Carrolltown fair grounds, were new developments in investigations made by the county authorities.

Waging Decisive Battle.

London.—The decisive battle of the war in the east is believed at hand. From the Baltic down to the Moldavian plain—900 miles—bitter fighting is under way. The Germans are rushing every available man to the eastern battle line, drawing upon their reserves on the western and Italian fronts. There is every indication of a determined drive on Riga, to offset Korniloff's Galician drive. The Russian war office summarized the captures recorded since the offensive against Lemberg began, on July 1, up to July 13, as follows: Eight hundred and thirty-four officers, 35,809 men, 93 heavy and light guns, 28 trench mortars, 403 machine guns, 43 mine throwers, 45 bomb mortars, 3 fire throwers, 2 airplanes, and huge quantities of equipment and supplies.

Potato Prices Drop Again.

Chicago.—Potatoes, which declined $1 a barrel last week, tumbled 75 cents further. Virginia potatoes, which sold at $6.50 to $7.00 a barrel last Saturday, were quoted at $5.75 to $6.25.

Man Charged With Menacing Wilson.

Chicago.—Secret Service agents arrested John Natchke, who is charged with having threatened the life of the President. According to government operatives he was instrumental in promoting what was called the "Self-Defense League in Opposition to the Conscription Law."

Kaiser's Pirates Bagged.

London.—Four of the largest and most modern German submarines were destroyed by American warships which were conveying the first installment of United States troops to France, according to a Central News dispatch from Bern, Switzerland. This information is from a German source contained in a Berns dispatch to a Rome news agency and forwarded from Rome by the Central News.

Henry To Seek Food Trust.

Washington.—Francis J. Henry of San Francisco has been asked by the government to locate the food trust, if there is such a thing. Mr. Henry has accepted the assignment and it is understood that he proposes to establish headquarters for his hunt in Chicago, beginning the search with an investigation of the packing industry.

Mrs. Till

visiting at W.

Mrs. Esther Mary Gensimore.

Mrs. Esther Mary Gensimore, of Birmingham, died at her home at 6.30 o'clock Saturday morning, of diseases incident to old age. She was born June 10, 1843, and had spent most of her life at Eden Hill, near Birmingham. Mrs. Gensimore had been a member of the Presbyterian Church since she was 13 years of age. She was married to Wm. C. Gensimore, who died three years ago. The following children survive: L. D. of Eden Hill; John L. of Pitcairn; Dr. C. W., of Bedford; Mrs. Wm. Wallace, of Union Furnace; Mrs. W. A. Sprinkle, of Pitcairn, and Miss Mart at home. One brother, E. H. Harding, of Altoona, and one sister, Mrs. J. E. Love, of Chicago, also survive. The funeral was held Monday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock in the Birmingham, Presbyterian Church, followed, by interment in the church cemetery.

A MILITARY SOCIAL.

The Epworth League of the Bedford M. E. Church gave a Military Social last evening in honor of Company L, in the beautiful and spacious rooms above the Bedford Garage, which place was kindly given for the occasion by Dr. Blackwelder.

A number of the boys of Co. L, are members of the League and to show the appreciation of the other members of the League for their patriotism and loyalty to their country. They gave this social to all the members of Company L.

A delightful time was planned for all. The Orchestra furnished splendid music through out the evening. Then the following programme added to their pleasure.

Flag Salute—Singing—America.

Invocation, Rev. J. T. Bell. Welcome address, James Davidson, (Pres. of the League) also by Rev. Bell, who gave the boys a splendid talk full of good things for them to remember. Response, Capt. Heit. Music. Reading, Reub's First Love, Miss Vesta Brightbill. Music. Reading, Mrs. J. H. Feight. Military Drill by Capt. Heit at the same time, James Davidson acting as Capt. of the league and its members trying to do just like Company L. caused lots of merriment for all. The League used flags instead of rifles. Good music and Good Eats ended the splendid evening one not to be forgotten by the BOYS.

PARTIAL ARRANGEMENTS TO SEE CO. L OFF.

The committee on arrangements to bid Co. L. God-speed met in the rooms of the Tate Building on Saturday night and took the following action

The first procedure was to increase the committee by one member and Dr. S. F. Statler was unanimously elected as the seventh member of the committee and again was chosen its permanent chairman.

After an expression of appreciation of the honor conferred upon him, Dr. Statler asked for outlines of procedure on the departure of "Our Boys."

The final conclusions were to have a brief parade conducive to the solemnity of the occasion headed by the Bedford Band to start at the Armory South on Richard Street to John St., West on John St. to Juliana Street to Court House Company L will kindly form in Street in front of Court House, where Captain A. I. Lyon will call the meeting to order and introduce Chairman S. F. Statler, who will make no longer than a five minute speech wishing the boys God-speed in their endeavors and Rev. Allen, of the M. E. Church, of Everett, will ask God's Blessings for the boys' adventure.

It is the request of the committee that all automobiles park on streets other than around the Court House and a request is also urgent that automobiles do not park near the station.

After the ceremonies are closed at the Court House all citizens will march in hollow square around Co. L. to the station.

It is the request of the committee that all the veterans of the county and the Boy Scouts take part in the march and the recently organized Nazi League is to be in line.

The departure of "the boys" for foreign lands is not a gala event but a most solemn one, and the exercises are to be made brief and all opportunities given the relatives and friends for "good-byes," to their loved and dear ones for mothers, fathers, brothers, sisters, wives and sweethearts.

No one but relatives and immediate friends will be permitted on the platform at the station. No autos in the marches. The time of departure not known yet and will have to be announced by telephone.

FARM STOCK

SHEEP PROFITABLE ON FARM

More Can Well Be Maintained in Addition to Live Stock That Are Already Kept Thereon.

(By W. F. BAIRD.)

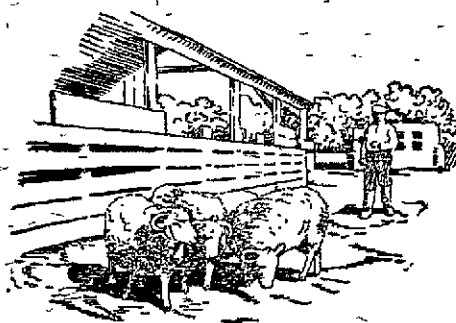

While it is not my purpose to try to induce stockmen to abandon cattle and pork production and engage exclusively in sheep raising, I do claim that from ten to one hundred more sheep could be profitably maintained on a very large portion of our farms.

Well-Bred Specimen.

In addition to the live stock that are already kept thereon. For a period of 23 years I have been engaged in general farming and stockraising where I now reside. I have been raising horses, cattle and hogs during this entire period, and for the last 16 years I have kept from 100 to 125 breeding ewes of the mutton type. I have endeavored to produce as good stock of all kinds as I could, and to keep them in the most profitable manner. I have found no other class of live stock more profitable in dollars and cents than the sheep. Aside from this fact, I find that I can now keep as much other stock as formerly in addition to the sheep.

Some of my fields produce twice as much grain as formerly, and my grass lands are much more productive than they were. There is no great mystery connected with the care of the farm flock, but there is more to do than to purchase a flock and turn them out to shift for themselves without proper attention and shelter, if one expects to add to his bank account. Costly barns are not a necessity, but some sort of a shed that will keep them dry is needed. Let your roofs be constructed of shingles, boards, iron or any material that will keep off cold rains, sleet, etc. I prefer a shed extending east and west, open or partly so on the south side, so arranged that it can be closed if bad storms occur. Give plenty of pure air, a dry place to lie down, and all the sunshine possible, thereby adding to the comfort and thrift of the flock and the profits of the owner.

HARVEST CROPS WITH SWINE

Results Given of Experiment Conducted by Ohio Station—Best Gains Made on Clover.

In tests made by the Ohio station three lots of pigs were fed 30 days as follows: Lot 1, ear corn and clover pasture; lot 2, allowed to hog down rye, and lot 3, ear corn and rape pasture. In addition all lots were fed approximately one-fourth pound of tankage daily per pig. The respective lots made average daily gains of 0.82, 0.57 and 0.75 pounds per pig, and consumed, aside from pasture, 2.06, 6.34, and 2.91 pounds of feed per pound of gain. Lot 2 was then put in with lot 1 on clover and lot 3 remained on the rape, where the pigs were fed for 28 days. The pigs on clover made an average daily gain per pig of 0.75 pounds, consuming 3.64 pounds of feed aside from pasture per pound of gain, and the lot on clover, 0.87 pounds gain, consuming 3.16 pounds of feed per pound of gain.

PEDIGREE OF DIRECT VALUE

Gives Record of Ancestors of Animals for Five or Six Generations—“Like Produces Like.”

The pedigree of an animal is a record of its ancestors, or family. The ordinary pedigree usually shows the ancestors for five or six generations. The value of the pedigree lies in the fundamental law of nature that “like produces like.”

DON'T SELL BREEDING STOCK

Fancy Prices Offered for Brood Sow or Cow Should Not Tempt Farmer at This Time.

Don't let the temptation of high prices now being offered for live stock or undue fear of the prices asked for many popular breeds mislead you into selling a breeding cow or a brood sow that will drop the golden calf or litters.

ARMED ARIZONA REPORTS I. W. W.

Citizens of Bisbee Drive 1,193 Strike Inciters to New Mexico

ENTIRE WEST IS AROUSED

Appeal is Made to President Wilson and U. S. Military Authorities—German Money Operating to Embarrass Government War Industries.

San Francisco.—From the Canadian border to Mexico civil, State and military authorities are on the alert to repress the series of internal disorders that have been precipitated by the Industrial Workers of the World. Gov. Campbell of Arizona, realizing that the situation has grown beyond the control of the State authorities, has appealed by wire to Gen. Parker, U. S. A., commanding Fort Sam Houston, Texas, for military aid.

President Wilson has also been urged, in a message sent to him through the Department of Labor by Federal Mediators John McReid and G. W. P. Hunt, to take prompt action to stop the deportation of strikers from Bisbee and Douglas, both in Arizona, to the end that sympathetic strikes and industrial paralysis may be prevented.

Meanwhile, packed in cattle and box cars, 1,193 members of the Industrial Workers of the World have been herded from Bisbee under the rifles of a Sheriff's posse and the threat of three machine guns and bundled along to Columbus, N. M., where it is stated that they will be placed under the protection or the guard of soldiers of the United States army.

Despatches from all points along the line between Bisbee and Mexico say that local authorities and citizens, all heavily armed, are watching for the passing trains with the firm determination of preventing any debarkation this side of the border.

It is openly charged that the Industrial Workers of the World, under the influence of German suggestion, are operating to “embarrass the United States Government” by disturbing labor and industry and curtailing production. The sheriff at Bisbee, in a formal statement, indorses these charges, and declares that the roundup will be 100 per cent efficient, to the end that no member of the order will remain in his district.

The uprising is more than a labor disturbance. It is one of those peculiar internal movements that fill a category all their own. The Indus-

THREE SLAIN, COMPANION HELD.

Family of E. I. Humphries Murdered Mysteriously in Pennsylvania.

Carrolltown, Pa.—Edmund I. Humphries, wealthy coal operator of Carrolltown, his wife and 15 year old son, were killed in a mysterious attack made on them when the party, en route to Philadelphia by automobile, stopped to fix a punctured tire in the deserted fair grounds three miles outside of Carrolltown.

George C. Tompkins, Jr., of Philadelphia, former well known automobile racer but recently a partner of Mr. Humphries in the Newborn Coal Co., who was a member of the party, has been held by the police as a material witness.

Tompkins was arrested after the coroner's inquest which developed several discrepancies in the story he told the police after the shooting.

According to Tompkins he barely escaped after the three masked robbers had leaped from the woods and shot down the three members of the Humphries family while they were busy on the disabled automobile. But the coroner ordered his detention after the discovery of powder burns on the clothing of the bodies and in light of the fact that a large sum of money in Humphries' body and valuable jewels on that of his wife were not lost.

WHY WE ARE NERVOUS

In perfect health we hardly realize that we have a network of nerves, but when strength is declining the same nervous system gives the alarm in headaches, tiredness, dreamful sleep, irritability, and unless corrected, leads straight to a breakdown.

Scott's Emulsion is exactly what you should take; its rich nutriment gets into the blood and so feeds the tiny nerve-cells while the whole system responds to its refreshing tonic force.

Children Cry FOR FLETCHER'S CASTOR A

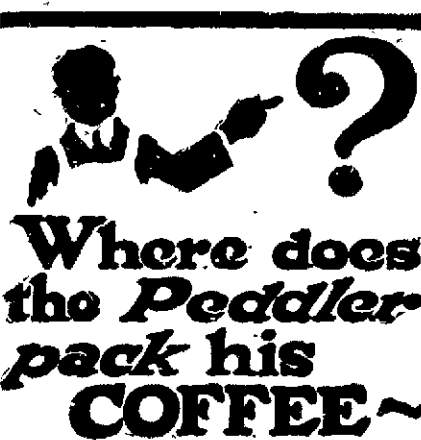

What a Mar Should Have at 35. Jack Lait says in the August American Magazine:

“At thirty-five a citizen should have a wife and children; he should have a permanent trade, business or profession, he should own a home; he should have money in bank and a commensurate endowment policy half paid off; he should be through with experimenting and on his way, realizing the dreams he dreamt when he had time to dream, walking over the paths he laid in the road-building years, hiking on his second wind beyond the point to which he laboriously strained his way theretofore.”

“Youth is a tonic and its manifestations are grit and gameness, hope and yearning, ambition and hard tackling, energy and pep and good-as-new recoveries and gay times and extravagances. But youth is a bargain commodity—priceless to own, cheap to buy.”

“He's only a boy,” says the world, and he goes at fifty cents on the dollar.

“Therefore youth is the time to invest, and sometimes later comes the time to collect. Somewhere is the turning peak. I think it is marked ‘35.’”

Where does the Peddler pack his COFFEE?

IN a dark cellar, maybe. But Golden Sun is clean-roasted, cut and packed in air-tight cans in great, immaculate rooms. It's free from chaff, it is strong and full of fragrance and aroma. So Golden Sun makes into coffee that's rich and mellow, delicious and satisfying. Yet its price is modest—for it carries no premiums. Only grocers sell it.

NOTICE

To Whom It May Concern:—

Notice is hereby given that The Public Service Commission of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, by action taken on April 4th, 1917, has determined that an existing crossing at grade at a point where the tracks of the Huntingdon and Broad Top Railroad Company crosses State Highway, Route No. 39, at Station 255 + 36 said route, near Mt. Dallas Station in Snake Spring Township, Bedford County, Pennsylvania, is a dangerous crossing at grade requiring its abolition and that plans for said abolition have been prepared by the State Highway Department.

A public hearing will be held by the Commission on Wednesday, July 11th, at 9.30 o'clock in the morning in its rooms in the Capitol at Harrisburg on this matter upon the questions of the adoption of plans for the abolition of said grade crossing, the apportionment of the cost and expenses incident to said abolition, including damage due to adjoining property owners whose property may be injured by reason of said abolition in accordance with the plans to be adopted by the Commission. Copies of the plans prepared by the State Highway Department are now on file in the office of the County Commissioners of Bedford County, in the Borough of Bedford, and the offices of the Commission at Harrisburg, and open to the inspection of all persons.

At the aforesaid time and place all persons interested are hereby notified to be present and present such testimony as desired.

The Lord is my auto.

I shall not want.

It maketh me to lie under it in the dusty roads. It leadeth me into much trouble. It draineth on my soul. I go into paths of death for lack of it. Yea, though I understand kings, and ord perfectly, I fear much evil. Weigh the axle might break. It has a weight in the presence of my enemies.

Lord, I anoint the tire with a patch, and the radiator boils over. Surely this chariot shall not follow me all the days of my life, or I will dwell in the house of poverty forever.

SCIENCE BAFFLED
BY HUSKY BABY

Weights One Hundred Pounds at Less Than Three Years of Age.

MAULS BIG BROTHER

Moves Buffet or Piano, Rides in Carriage With Auto Springs and Eats as Much as Two Grown Persons.

Philadelphia. — "Billy" McCarthy, Philadelphia's prize baby, is two years and nine months old and weighs 100 pounds. He moves the furniture around in the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. McCarthy, eats as much as two grown persons and has perfect health. Medical science admits that it is baffled by the baby's growth.

Science has put the "O. K." mark on "Billy." It says that he is all right and advises the parents to let him eat and grow. His growth is not due to an accumulation of fat, for he has bones as large as those of a person five feet seven inches tall, and weighing 154 pounds. Medical men say his growth is all right, but they have failed to explain it.

Mauls Big Brother Around.

"Billy" plays with his five-year-old brother Frank and mauls him around at will. He holds Frank on his lap and pushes him around the yard on an "Irish mail." And Frank wears "eight-year size" suits. If a ball rolls behind a piano or other piece of furniture "Billy" moves the furniture, and it keeps his parents busy getting it back in place. He eats meat, principally chicken, steaks and chops. His mother orders chicken for him three times a week. Every morning the milkman leaves four quarts of milk at the McCarthy home.

When the youngster goes out for a ride he sits in a carriage that has regular automobile springs. The carriage was built specially and cost $42. He is now outgrowing it, but, luckily, he started to walk a couple of months ago. "Billy's" shoes also are made to order and cost $12 a pair. In fact, all his clothes have to be made specially. His last shirts cost $4 each. Then, after running up this bill for clothing, "Billy" outgrows the entire outfit in three months.

His Mind Also Above Normal.

The mammoth baby's mind has not been stunted by his great growth. In fact, his mentality is greatly above normal. He learned to walk quickly when he started, and in a couple of months has become able to walk as good as a child two or three years older.

When he was born in a New York city hospital, August 23, 1914, "Billy" weighed less than ten pounds. When he left the hospital with his mother, three weeks later, he weighed 36 pounds. At nine months he tipped the scales at 89, and now touches the hundred mark. He stands three feet, six inches tall.

Real Man

By Walter J. Delaney

(Copyright, by W. G. Chapman.)

There were eight in the group—frowsy, hard-looking fellows, shuffling in gait, tattered as to attire, unshaven and not even clean. One was building a fire, six of his companions were rifling their pockets, producing stolen eggs and onions and slices of bread, cake fragments, in short, the general variety of food likely to be given at the kitchen door to begging tramps.

This, in fact, they were, even the man who lay back where a heap of old railroad ties had been piled so as to form a sort of shelter. He half lifted on one arm, his haggard face showing illness and pain.

"The medicine, boys!" he cried out eagerly.

Each one of the group hung his head. The sick man gulped. He said huskily:

"No money, eh? Well, I know you did your best. I guess you had better get me to a hospital."

"There's Busy Ben to report yet," announced the cook of the group. "He's the one that coaxes the coin out of people. Ah, there he is now."

A stalwart fellow with a limping foot came through the woodland path to the tramp camp, situated exactly on the county line for reasons of prudence.

"Any coin, partner?" piped the cook. "Sure," retorted the new-comer, and rather gruffly, it seemed. "Here's your medicine, Bartley," and he handed the invalid a bottle, which the latter seized joyously.

"Oh, you've got it, have you?" he cried. "Now, I'll get well. How did you come across it?"

"Bought it, of course."

"Where did you get the money?" "Ask me no questions and I'll tell you no lies. The good people—baugh! All of them thought I was lying when I told them I had a sick partner. I offered to work for the town druggist a whole day if he'd fill the prescription and he hooted me out into the street. Charity—but I got it."

Busy Ben was strangely mute after that. He seemed pre-occupied and disturbed. One of the men had brought a chicken. This with the other food made a good meal. They boiled the eggs in an old kettle, made coffee in the same receptacle and then the group generally settled down to the tramp's paradise—sleep.

Only Busy Ben, thoughtfully smoking his stump of a pipe, sat up near the blazing fire, ever and anon edging closer to the shelter where sick John Bartley lay. Tenderly he spoke:

"Taken a dose yet?"

"Two of them. Didn't you notice me eat? Why, I feel like a new man already! There was never such a knacker for chills and fever like that blessed prescription. I'll be afoot inside of two days. Partner, I'll hope to do as much for you some day."

Busy Ben only stared stonily. His soul was chock full of sentiment just now, but he strove hard to conceal it. Then the grateful eyes beaming upon him unlocked the door of his mind. He glanced sharply at his snoring companions. Then he leaned towards the invalid.

"Bartley, I want to tell you something. I stole that money."

The sick man looked perturbed. He was living a hard life, but he had once been a respectable citizen and shame was not yet dead within him. He was silent, but his lips twitched.

"I had to do it," continued Ben, as hardly as he could. "Everybody turned me down. I was getting desperate, for I knew that the medicine maybe meant life or death to you. I was sitting resting behind a hedge when I heard voices. Beyond it was a woman and a child, a little girl about eight years old. They had just come out of an old hut. You know the big wind we had last night? Well, it had blown down half of the old ruin. It seemed the mother and child had ventured into the wreck to see if they could gather up some of their belongings. They carried a lot of clothes, going to some new place of refuge. The little one, it seemed, had tried to find her savings bank, but the bureau where it was lay under a heap of wreckage. 'We'll come again tomorrow and look for it,' the mother promised. Then they went away.

"And then—"

"I got the money," spoke Ben in a low, subdued tone, shrugging his shoulders as if to cast off unpleasant thoughts. "There was seventy-two cents in the little bank. I took fifty cents, the price of the medicine."

"Some day—" began Bartley in a tone of emotion.

"Yes," nodded Ben, "some day you and I must make up the cents in dollars, if we're real men." Then he walked away.

Imagination or reality, the medicine cured John Bartley, but not in two days, nor in six. It was a full week before he could get well about. Then he made urgent inquiries of Ben as to the location of the blown-down house and the woman and the girl.

It was nearly noon when he located the wrecked hut. Near to it under a set of tarpaulins was a lot of new building material. Bending over a bed of flowers was a little girl. "The one that Ben robbed!" muttered Bartley hoarsely.

"Heaven bless her forevermore!" and the tears stood in his eyes. Then he approached the child. She looked up with fearless, friendly eyes. She picked a lovely rose and tendered it to him.

"I'm sort of keeping the flowers all right till we get the new house up," she said. "I'm afraid it will be a long time, though," she added.

"How is that?" inquired Bartley.

"Why, under those covers yonder is a patent bungalow mamma bought. Oh, we were to have such a fine house! It's all paid for, but the bank mamma had the rest of her money in to pay for the building of the house has failed. So mamma has to put me with Aunt Nellie, who is poor, and mamma is out nursing. But maybe some day we can earn enough to put up the house."

"Boys," spoke John Bartley to his fellow tramps that night, "among us are some workers, surely. I was once an architect. Will you help me build the house I have told you about?"

Millville witnessed a marvel that week. Nine earnest, industrious tramps with alacrity and vigor followed the directions of Architect Bartley. Little Floribel Moore was on hand most of the time, half comprehending the unique situation.

Mrs. Moore was engaged in nursing twenty miles away. She stood spell-bound as she viewed the bungalow which unexpected hands had constructed. The tramps had disappeared, but two days later little Floribel ran up to Bartley in the street and ran towards him, pulling her mother after her.

"Mamma, this is the man who showed the others what to do and told me such pretty stories."

"You see, we heard of your misfortune," lamely explained Bartley, "and thought we'd surprise you," and evaded the point direct, but it was sure to come out some time.

Bartley's fellow migrants went on to pastures new. Bartley himself remained in Millville. A village contractor had employed him gladly when he learned of his former experience as an architect. Within a month a few would have recognized the well-dressed, businesslike new-time "Mr. Bartley as the old-time fellow companion of uncouth knights of the road.

Mrs. Moore, installed in her pretty new home, was glad to welcome him as an occasional visitor. Little Floribel, doted upon him. One evening as mother and child were in the room where Bartley was their guest, the little one chanced to take her savings bank from the mantel to inspect its contents.

"Oh, mamma, look!" cried Floribel suddenly "who put in all of the bright new pennies?"

The "bright new pennies" were gold pieces. At last John Bartley had been able to keep his vow. For each penny taken by Busy Ben he had substituted a gold dollar. He flushed with embarrassment. The searching eye of the widow scanned him and then, as Floribel was bustled over the counting of her treasure, she asked softly:

"What does this mean?"

For the first time the widow knew all of the truth. Into her beautiful eyes came pity, sympathy and love, for those two, "just plain folks," had been coming closer and closer to one another during the weeks of their growing friendship, and fate destined that their lonely lives should be united.

Exactly.

A couple of country cousins on a visit to Glasgow halted in front of a brass plate fixed on the front of a house, whereon was inscribed in bold characters the word "Chiroprapist."

"Chiroprapist!" remarked one of them, perplexedly. "What's that?" "Why," replied his companion, "a chiroprapist is a chap that teaches canaries to whistle."—London Tit-Bits.

Penna. Division of the Women's Committees of National Defense Organized Saturday Afternoon.

At an organization meeting of the Pennsylvania Division of the Women's Committees of National Defense, held in the Court-House last Saturday afternoon, a most encouraging attendance was noted. The chairman of the neighboring towns, where organizations were recently effected, reported the work done throughout the county in the interests of the Navy League and Emergency Aid. Saxton, Riddiesburg, Hopewell, Six Mile Run, Gettysburg, Imber, Schellburg, Cessna, Wolfburg, Pleasantville and Centerville representatives reported their relief work as most satisfactory and showed great progress in their sewing for the Belgian sufferers and their work for the surgical dressings committee.

Monday evening a number of Bedford people attended a meeting at Osterburg. The reception tendered them and the interest shown by people in that locality are proof that work will begin in earnest as soon as the organization is effected. Mrs. J. H. Zinn was chosen as Chairman.

The local sewing and knitting classes are progressing rapidly and considerable work is turned out at each meeting. The attendance is most encouraging but there is still room for more. The President of the League, Miss Barclay, started a "chain tea" a few days ago. Ten cents per guest is charged and the proceeds go toward Relief Work. The officers and chairman of the local Branch were Miss Barclay's guests and at this tea 48 new towels for the Ambulance Corps were made. There is an opportunity for each and every one to do her "bit." NOW is the time to help "our own boys."

Lights for Sick Room.

When, as in case of sickness, you wish a soft, warm light in a room, rather than the glare that an electric light imparts, make little bags of china silk (any color desired), and put them over each bulb. It is well to run elastic around the edge of the circle, which you cut from the silk, so that the bulb can be easily removed by just slipping out of the bag.

Patriotic Bazaar

A "patriotic bazaar," planned by the ladies of the Navy League and Emergency Aid, will be held tomorrow (Saturday) at this place. The weather permitting, the opening will take place at three o'clock on the public square fronting the Presbyterian Church; in case of inclement weather, the large upper room in the Bedford Garage will be the scene of the festivities. This bazaar is being given for the benefit of Company L, and every effort will be made to have it a gala occasion. At each "Ally" booth will be on sale articles and dainties representative of each allied country, for instance, tea and wafers at the British booth, spaghetti and sandwiches at the Italian; cakes, candy, etc., at the "U. S. A." etc.

Music will be furnished for the big "cakewalk" and a prize will be in evidence; Grab bags, a Post Office, and other forms of entertainment will be provided.

A knitting machine, operated by Miss Greenland, will demonstrate sock-knitting. Each member of Co. L, will be supplied with socks made by this machine; the yarn will be furnished by the local branch of the League and contributions are solicited.

Saturday, three p.m. Public Square Everybody welcome.

Belgian Relief Work.

Miss Bain, treasurer of the local Emergency Aid Branch, is in receipt of the following letter from the chairman of the Belgian Relief Committee, Philadelphia Headquarters:

Philadelphia, July 11, 1917.

My Dear Miss Bain:—

The Belgian Relief Committee desires to thank the school-children of Bedford for the very generous contribution of $43.17 sent thru the Navy League Organization to be used for the relief of the suffering children of Belgium.

I have conferred with the Belgian Minister of State, who tells me that the suffering grows more intense in Invaded Belgium. So he asks we will do all in our power to encourage contributions; which can be forwarded thru him. Despite the fact that the U. S. Government has arranged to loan to the Belgian Government the same amount of money that the French and English Governments have been loaning in the past, which may possibly provide for two meals a day, the need in Invaded Belgium is greater than ever.

I have had, also, a consultation with the members of the Commission in New York, who have arranged that contributions we receive for the children of Belgium can be forwarded thru the Commission for Relief in Belgium to be used in the Province of Antwerp, to relieve the children who are suffering so intensely there. All contributions sent thru the Commission are paid by the Commission for Relief in Belgium to definite sub-committees working with the Commission in Invaded Belgium. For example, there are "milk can teens" where mothers with babies under six months old are given special nourishment and milk for their babies; also special "soup canteens" for children in need of nourishment additional to that provided by the Commission's ordinary ration.

If you have read Mrs. Kellogg's book, "The Women of Belgium" you will understand how hard these people are working to save the children. As the need is so great we deeply appreciate this contribution from the children of Bedford and will take great pleasure in forwarding it promptly. On behalf of the children of Belgium whom this kindness will aid I desire to thank the children of Bedford, who made this contribution possible.

Very sincerely,
I. I. R. Henry,
Chairman.

Curiosities of Red Hair.

It is a curious fact that a red-haired person seldom marries a life partner who has hair of a ruddy hue. The reason why parents with glossy black hair so often have red-haired children is because the glossiness is due to red hidden by black pigment. A dark-haired child has never been known to have a parent with flaxen hair. The rule is that children will not have darker hair than that of the darkest-haired parent.

The Art of Kissing.

Don't kiss all over, as grasshopper walk. Don't sit down to it. Stand. You needn't be anxious to get into a crowd. Two persons are plenty. corner and catch a kiss. Stand. It won't hurt you after you're used to it. Don't be in a hurry. Providence will give you strength for the ordeal. Take good care—the lips meet, the nose, the heart opens, heaven it opens before you, and the art of kissing is learned.—Exchange.

HELP WIN THE WAR THROUGH HOOVER'S FOOD ECONOMY PLAN

Mr. Hoover, asks every woman in the household over fifteen years of age, whether a member of the family or an employee, to sign the food conservation pledge card, which is handed to you with this notice.

The President of the United States has also appealed to you for your help. This war, with its mines and submarines, its bombs and shells, its machine guns and gas, is terrible in its destruction of human life, but starvation, caused by the war, has killed more people than battles and it works right on whether armies are fighting or training.

The American woman becomes the great bulwark against starvation. To her is allotted the fight for conserving food, so that we can save the lives of our friends who are fighting for human liberty and universal democracy.

Food saving here can save lives in Italy, Belgium, France England, Ireland, Spain, or Sweden, or even in Austria and Germany, for the people of those enemy countries also will turn to us for food the day the fighting stops.

To save life in other countries and to lessen suffering and great privation here and above all to save food for the armies, the President of the United States and the Mayor of the city appeal for help from you who actually have charge of the feeding of the many hundreds of thousands of people who live here. Every woman can help.

The pledge is entirely voluntary. There is no compulsion about it. You are being asked to help. You are not being ordered to do anything. It is an appeal to patriotism and your desire to help your fellow-man. Mr. Hoover, who has made so great a success of the food administration in Belgium, will write to you after you have signed the pledge card. He will tell you some things you can do to help save lives and win the war, to cut down the cost of living, and perhaps even increase the wholesomeness of food in your family.

Why should we save? Because European farms have been neglected for three seasons, the food supply is lower than it has ever been known to be and scarcity prevails in all nations.

Mr. Hoover regards the women as the second line of defense and his motto is, "Eat plenty, avoid waste and save the staples."

Please fill out the pledge card carefully and correctly.

The Government will send you a window card, after we get your pledge. This card shows who is helping and we must have one in the window of every house.

Please help.

On Hand!

By George Elmer Cobb

(Copyright, by W. G. Chapman.)

"You will find your investment well worth its price," proclaimed Eros Mott, itinerant palm-reader and faker extraordinary. "Indices of character, sir, formation and lines of the human hand. I have drawn two hands in pencil outline from the original A. name Valerius Stark, your senior clerk, I infer."

John Murdock, village banker, nodded assentingly.

"B. Willis Thorpe, junior clerk, well, sir, here is a note; that index finger. It shows power. A note that tapering small finger, concentration. Ah, sir, believe me, that hand will do something in the world."

"Well, yes, Mr. Stark is a capable, industrious young man. I am pleased at the report of your observations, for I know little of his antecedents or predilection."

"B. Willis Thorpe," and the speaker shook his head dubiously. "Short fingers, squat thumb. Inclined to mass flexibly, which shows—what? Acquisition. What he goes after he will try to get. Should say that such a hand, idly strolling into a casual bag of gold, might cling tenaciously to the coin. Ahem! Thanks!" and Eros Mott pocketed his fee and departed. Val Stark, polite, suave, hypocritical, had been most courteous to him. Willis Thorpe, free and easy and skeptical, had laughed at him. So the faker had given rope to his prejudices and had done the young man a bad turn.

At his desk in the little counting room of the bank, Stark waved his hand in gracious adieu to the professor of palmistry, taking pains to flash conspicuously the glittering solitaire it bore. Thorpe, with the joyous rhapsody of a cheery nature, deliberately winked at the retreating "scientist" and, doubling his fist, showed a hard, knotty "bunch of lives." Somehow, in a casual way, Mr. Murdock that day recited his investment in advanced palmistry to a director of the institution. The messenger boy overheard the conversation, and, chuckling, retailed it to Thorpe and Stark.

"The fellow has given me quite a boost," chirped the gratified Stark. "He doesn't seem to fancy me," observed Willis jollily. "I'd be willing to show him the 'power' in my knuckles, if that would change the oracle."

It was an ideal evening when Willis called on Myra, the pretty and vivacious daughter of his employer. He fancied that the latter received him stiffly, but he forgot all about that as he wandered about the garden, chatting with his sweetly harmonious companion. It was a night of gentle breezes and sweet sounds of the lilac bloom freighted the air. It was paradise complete, until Stark arrived. He was willowy and bland, Willis, blunt and direct. The banker drew the contrast sharply. He smiled on Stark. The rigmorale of the palmist had made an impression on his practical mind, and Willis began to note after that a decided change in the treatment of the father of his fair enamourata.

Then two weeks in succession upon the evening when the clerks were invited to the Murdock home, Willis found himself sent on a bank mission to the next town and missed, seeing Myra. The second evening away, however, he returned, sorrowfully ever, as he regretted his absence from the side of the girl he adored. He was waiting for the eleven o'clock train, seated on a truck on the depot platform, when he pricked up his ears at the mention of a name. It was "Stark."

"He's to meet us here and arrange for the come-off of the deal tomorrow night, is Stark," were the words borne to the hearing of Willis from the lips of one of two men seated on a crate.

"Agreed to hand us the coin if we make ourselves scarce and don't give his past away to the guy he's working for?"

"Not till he's worked the guy," came the response. "He wants us to help him. He'd stay and marry the daughter of the boss, only his wife has found out about him and likely to turn up any day, so—ha! ha! Go and ask father, the young maiden said, but she knew that he knew her father was dead, and he knew that she knew the life that he led. Oh! but he's after a comfortable lot of the shekels before he skips. Come on, there's the policeman. We don't want to be seen hanging around here."

All the way home the mind of Willis dwelt on the mysterious allusions of the two strangers. He had just a mere glimmering of the truth, but his suspicions were deeply aroused. There could be only one conception of the dark hint imparted, that Stark was not what he seemed to be and was in collusion with men who had some secret, forcing a climax in his affairs.

It was not only sinister, but alarming. Yet Willis was undecided as to what course he should pursue. He had no positive evidence that Stark meditated any wrongdoing. He and Willis were theoretically love and business rivals, and if he went to Mr. Murdock with his story the latter would naturally attribute the action to jealousy or malice.

"Something's wrong, I feel sure," ruminated Willis, "but I can do only one thing—watch."

Twice during the week Stark secretly disappeared from town. Willis believed he had gone to the town where he had seen the two men. He did not follow him, for he was not sure of his premises. Then the crisis in the enterprise was forced by the progress of routine results. On the last day of each month the bank delivered a bulk remittance covering clearings to its principal correspondent bank at Wickton. At the present time the balance represented a large sum in favor of the Wickton institution. Two days before the delivery Willis knew that Mr. Murdock and Stark intended making the trip in an automobile. He also knew that the strong box containing the money held something over thirty thousand dollars.

By sheer accident the morning of the 30th, Willis passed the desk of Stark just as the latter was called to the window by a client depositor. Glancing at a half-finished telegram blank upon which Stark had been engaged when interrupted, he read the words: "Nine-thirty, sharp, one mile east on the Thurston side road."

"I guess it!" soliloquized Willis, as he studied over the words he had read. "The wire is for the two men I overheard. One mile east of the main road, time, nine-thirty. I'll be there."

It was a clear moonlight night when Mr. Murdock and Stark left the bank. The strong box between them on the front seat of the automobile, which Stark drove. The latter kept up a brisk conversation. When he turned from the main thoroughfare, Mr. Murdock exclaimed:

"Hold on! Where are you going?"

"Short cut, and the running is just as good."

A mile progressed, the machine came to a halt. The palmist had predicted that those hands of the wily Stark "would do something in the world." They did it now. They seized the banker suddenly by the throat. They beat him back as their owner hissed out:

"Fumble for the key to that box, or I'll choke you!" and then two men darted from the rear shrubbery, the accomplices of the rascally senior bank clerk.

The robbery had seemed so easy that the scoundrels had not thought weapons necessary. Willis, fearless, an hour or two previous, posted so near to the two lunkers that he could catch the echo of their conversation. He proceeded at once into doctory action.

"Biff! bang! thud! Those strong hands of his shot out like the instruments of power that they were. The two men went reeling and then prostrate, Stark, just about to receive the key to the strong box from the banker, was seized and hurled out of the machine, senseless. Then grind—zip! Springing to the wheel, Willis drove banker and box in a whirl of dust down the lonely country road.

When John Murdock recovered from the shock of it all, he grasped the honest, sinewy hand of Willis Thorpe with fervor. He shuddered at the memory of the fine Italian hand of the vanished Stark. It was an opportune moment for Willis to solicit the hand of the lovely Myra, and it all resulted from his being "on hand" at the critical moment.

Health Drinking Customs.

At Charles II.'s court began the custom, long since abandoned, of drinking but one-half of the goblet of wine, refilling and handing it to the person whose health had been drunk, and Hume, Broughton and Thackeray have in turn described with terse power the pretty custom among the Jacobite noblemen at royal banquets of the early Georgian days of covertly passing their wine glasses over the bowls in secret loyalty to the king over the water, thus compromising with their consciences. And it was for this reason that danger bowls were tabooed at royal tables until the time of Edward VII.

Two Speedy Classes.

"He belongs to a fast class." "Which fast class?" "Are there more than one." "Yes, two. There's the class that spend their money faster than they make it, and the other crowd that make their money faster than they can spend it."

GOOD NEWS, HERE'S SOUND-PROOF ROOM

Friend Husband Can Now Rave His Head Off Without Disturbing Neighbors.

Chicago.—"For heaven's sake, keep still; do you want all the neighbors to hear you?"

Glad tidings, husbands. Friend wife soon may have no reason to utter this phrase. If you're peevish you can peeve all you want to in perfect security from the prying ears of the family above, below or next door, for Prof. Irving Hamlin, secretary of the musical conservatory at Northwestern university, has invented a sound-proof room.

Professor Hamlin furnished the following description of his invention:

"Felt-mounted steps are placed on the top and two free edges of the door frame, which are under forcible conpression when the door is closed. An invisible board with a generous fold of felt, protected by strong sailcloth, moves downward by the action of the handle of the door and fills the crack between the door and the threshold. The door contains airspaces and a deadening quilt is placed in the space not occupied by the mechanism.

"Windows are treated somewhat similarly. Air spaces and quilts are placed in the walls, ceiling and floor. Ventilation is effected by introducing air through a duct in the roof to the basement, where it passes through heating coils and is washed. It flows in individual pipes to the rooms at a point near the ceiling and escapes through a pipe to the roof."

CHILD TELLS WEIRD TALE

Nine-Year-Old Chicago Movie Fan Has a Most Wonderful Imagination.

Chicago.—Nine-year-old Margaret Brennan is a movie fan. That, the police think, accounts for her vivid imagination.

An officer found Margaret strolling aimlessly through the loop district at five o'clock in the morning. He took her to central station.

"It happened just like things in the movies," said Margaret. "I was going to the theater Saturday night when an old man stopped me in the entrance and said: 'Do you want some ice cream?' I told him 'yes' and he whirled me away in an auto and took me to a house, where he bound me to a chair. I haven't had anything to eat all this time and I'm hungry."

The police called Michael Brennan, the child's father. He said she had run away the night before.

WIFE UNREASONABLE? MAKE LOVE TO HER!

Denver, Colo.—"If your wife is jealous of you and accuses you of things you didn't do and starts a quarrel with you on that account, don't argue with her or sass her back. Just make love to her."

This is a quotation from the advice of Hamilton Armstrong, chief of police of Denver, given to William Jacobson of Denver, when Jacobson with his sturdy wife appeared at the police station for personal repairs necessitated by a domestic passage at arms. The argumentative weapons used were a saucer and a potato masher.

Parrot Gives Fire Alarm.

Wilkes-Barre, Pa.—The incessant screeching of a parrot saved the lives of Mr. and Mrs. William Templeton and their children of Mount Zion, near the Wyoming camp grounds, by awakening the family and giving all a chance to fight their way from the burning building.

FINDS TWO SONS; SOUGHT ONLY ONE

Peculiar Experience of Hartford Woman While Searching for Offspring.

Denver, Colo.—To seek an only son and to learn she is the mother of two "sons," at least one of whom she did not know existed, is the somewhat peculiar experience of Mrs. Martha Congress of East Hartford, Conn.

Another strange circumstance in connection with the quest of her lost heir is that Louis Congress, the missing son, was prosperous, and robust when he disappeared several months ago. The two new "sons" of Mrs. Congress are in precarious health and without funds.

Mrs. Congress asked a local paper to find her lost son, believed to be in Colorado. Her ad got results. One of the letters in reply was dated at La Junta, Colo., P. O. Box 4463. It said: "Dearest Mother: I thought I would write you a few lines to let you know I am not very well this is why I am writing for money, in another letter you send me send $12 Because I need it am in Hard Luck I will tell you the Results When I Get Home. From Yours Truly & Sincerely,

"LOUIS CONGRESS."

"P. S. La Junta, Colo. Send it in Next Letter. Send it in Bills and Send it Mother."

The other son wrote from the Imperial hotel in Denver, and this is the touching appeal he inscribed: "Mamma: Saw your ad in the Post today; am a little sick. Will explain all when I get back to you. I have not been able to get work for a long time. Please send money to me care Imperial hotel, 318 Fourteenth street, Denver, Colo. I owe month's room rent at this hotel. Will leave town without their knowing it."

"Your loving son, LOUIE." Mrs. Congress is still looking for her son.

STEAL DEAD MAN'S HEART

Ghouls Dig Up Grave of Wealthiest and Most Popular Man in Southern Ohio.

Bethel, O.—Ghouls dug up the grave of Daniel Hill, eighty-four years old, of this town, and cut out the dead man's heart. They then covered the coffin again and made their escape. A box of burnt matches and spots on the tombstone were the only clues left.

Hill, one of the wealthiest and most popular men in southern Ohio had died of natural causes, according to his physician. A few days after the burial the sexton became suspicious and had the grave dug up. He found that the coffin had been sawed open.

DRUNKS TO RAISE CROP, IS MAYOR'S ORDER

Lockhaven, Pa.—The mayor of this city has solved, partially at least, the problem of the threatened food shortage. Recently, when a stranger was arrested for drunkenness and could not pay the city fine "His Honor" sentenced the man to dig the plot of ground in the rear of the Ross library, which will be cultivated. The mayor feels sure he will get enough of this class of labor in the next few months to take excellent care of the crop.

Lays Seven Eggs in Four Days.

Luverne, Minn.—C. H. Mareaux of this city is the owner of a hen that is unusually ambitious. Not satisfied with laying steadily, she occasionally produces two eggs a day. Recently she laid two eggs a day for three consecutive days, laying seven eggs in four days. The eggs are normal in size and well formed.

Geneva.—A French-Swiss paper gives the following version of a sensational incident which has been told in several forms:

Recently, two elegantly dressed men, carrying a heavy satchel, appeared at the office of the Italian general staff in Rome and demanded an audience with the chief of the intelligence department. When they were received by this official they made sensational disclosures and delivered all the documents of the Austro-Hungarian espionage bureau in Zurich.

The men were two notorious Italian burglars, who were known and feared from one end of the kingdom to the other. When the war broke out they were called to the colors and detailed to the same regiment. Life in the trenches did not suit them and they decided to desert. They escaped to Switzerland and settled in Zurich, where they plied their old trade with considerable success.

Turn Abilities to Use.

Regretting their desertion, the burglars decided to use their abilities in the interest of their country by "cleaning out" the Austro-Hungarian espionage bureau in the Zurich consulate of the dual monarchy. Accidentally they made the acquaintance of a former officer of the Italian navy, who had been cashiered many years before, and after an adventurous life in many countries, had entered the service of Austria as a spy.

From this man the two men obtained detailed plans of the offices of the consulate, and after a thorough preparation they carried out their raid on the espionage bureau. They bought the most modern tools and with their aid they were able to open the safes in the consulate quickly and without much difficulty.

The safes, which contained the most important documents, had compartments filled with poisonous gases meant to kill any burglar who might dare to tamper with them.

Made Their Escape.

The burglars had learned this from the former Italian naval officer, who had turned against his Austrian employers and aided the burglars on the promise of a liberal reward. Procuring masks like those worn by soldiers in the trenches they were able to open the compartments containing the deadly gases without danger to themselves. Although they worked nearly two hours, they were not disturbed. They made their escape safely, but had difficulty in getting out of Switzerland, and were compelled to wait many weeks before they were able to smuggle the stolen documents across the Italian frontier.

In February a cable dispatch from Berne reported that a burglary had been committed for political reasons in the Austro-Hungarian consulate general in Zurich, and that the perpetrators had not only ignored a large sum of money which was in one of the safes, but also left burglars' tools valued at more than $1,000 behind.

WHAT IS FOOD ECONOMY?

Little Talks on Health and Hygiene by Samuel G. Dixon, M. D. LL. D. Commissioner of Health

Hysteria of the individual is very catching, often becoming an epidemic. Community hysteria in a representative form of government destroys its efficiency. Hysterical people are apt to run to great excesses and neglect those things in life which are of the greatest importance, not only to the success of the individual but of the community. At present, we find individuals and whole communities hysterical on the economy of food-stuffs, even to the extreme of confining themselves to a maize (corn) diet instead of having a well balanced diet with the variety of food that will not only stimulate the appetite and the digestive glands, but will meet Nature's demands.

Man is an omnivorous being. We can best economize by eating what agrees with us. To resist tuberculosis and other wasting diseases and to keep in the best form for the working of our physical and mental body, particularly in these times of high nervous tension, we should have meat or some good vegetable protein as a substitute in moderation once a day.

In addition to this we want fat, preferably butter or cream or fats of animals, the latter only cooked sufficiently to heat them through. With the proteins and fats we want a carbohydrate (starch or sugar.)

Today there are many diet lists being given to the public worked up into tables based upon their heat-producing power. The trouble with these diet receipts is that they are based upon tests made upon those having perfect digestion and a normal amount of physical exercise in a normal atmosphere.

Life is a factor scientific medicine cannot measure. It forbids the human body from being compared with an inorganic machine or test tube experiments in the laboratory.

The digestive tract and its many glands that vary in their powers, to prepare food for the assimilation of the body, are governed by the nervous system. They vary greatly in their life power to produce digestive secretions. For the reasons given each individual, after once realizing that meats, fat, starches and sugar are necessary in various proportions to maintain his health, will have to make an intensive study of what digests, so as to give him the best health and keep up his weight to give him energy, and permit him to sleep, and to be of good cheer.

You will always find that people differ from each other in their selection of foodstuffs, some doing well on a large proportion of vegetable food, others doing better on a reasonable amount of meat and carbohydrates or starch, while others have to avoid starches and sugar to prevent violent indigestion and ill health.

We often find powerful men who live on very little food, while many frail, ill-nourished people have good appetites and eat plenty. These things are hard to explain. The laws of nature are so profound that even today in this scientific age we find the digestion of people differs so that we must at present attribute it to the variation of life force.

From our actual experience in life, after long devotion to the feeding of people, we have learned that a mixed diet is essential to good health. The practical experience of the individual must be a factor in guiding him in the selection of foods and the quantity he can eat.

CORROBORATION

Of Interest to Bedford Readers For months Bedford citizens have seen in these columns enthusiastic praise of Doan's Kidney Pills, by residents of this locality.

Would these prominent people recommend a remedy that had not proven reliable?

Would they confirm their statements after years had elapsed if personal experience had not shown the remedy to be worthy of endorsement?

The following statement should carry conviction to the mind of every Bedford reader.

Abram Wareham, R. F. D. No. 3, Everett, Pa., says: "Last winter, I had such a lame back and pains across my hips that I could hardly get around. I couldn't stoop or lift without severe pains. My kidneys didn't act as they should. I used two boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills and they cured me of the attack." (Statement given July 10, 1912.)

On March 4, 1916, Mr. Wareham said: "I have never had any occasion to change my high opinion of Doan's Kidney Pills since I first recommended them. They have never failed to give me excellent results and I always keep them on hand."

Price 60c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Wareham has twice publicly recommended. Foster-Milburn Co., Prop., Buffalo, N. Y.

DON'T SACRIFICE BROOD SOW

Important That All Animals Be Used to Increase Food Supply—Retain All Spring Gilts.

A sow is a good investment. This is true even in these strenuous times of high prices of food concentrates. The quotations on these feeds are controlled to a considerable extent by the price at which meat animals sell. Hence concentrates usually command a high price when hogs on the hoof at large packing centers sell at more than 16 cents per pound. However, record prices for swine as well as feed concentrates have been a great incentive to farmers to "cash in" all the hogs available. That many sows have been included is evident from the fact that bureau of crop estimates reports approximately three per cent fewer sows on farms in the United States than a year ago. Further, this is the first year the supply has not increased since 1913.

Breeding sows are at a premium and the demand for young stock is unprecedented. The hog buyers state in their reports that they are compelled to take anything that looks like a hog. The fluctuation in the number of hogs in the United States is subject largely to the fluctuations in the financial condition of the country. The high prices paid for hogs are a big inducement to farmers to market their hogs, the high prices of corn caused them to cut loose during the latter part of the year. The high prices paid for hogs and an increasing export trade are the two main factors which make the hog business especially attractive at the present time. Millions of farmers would purchase sows to farrow this coming season if they could, but this is almost an impossibility. Those farmers who are fortunate enough to have retained their breeding sows will play an important role in placing spring hogs on the market. The spring gilts from these litters should not be sent to market for meat purposes, but should be retained or sold only for breeding purposes in order to augment the pig crop next year.

ARE LITTLE PIGS OFF FEED?

Look Out for Germ Disease Affecting Soft Tissues of Mouth—Trouble is Contagious.

(By DR. F. B. HADLEY, College of Agriculture, University of Wisconsin.) Watch out for sore mouth disease in little pigs this year. A germ disease which affects the soft tissues of the mouth, causing ulcers with dark red borders, is common in many brood pens. Unless treated right and without delay the disease may cause death. Swab the ulcers with a solution of potassium permanganate made by dissolving one ounce of crystals in two quarts of freshly boiled warm water. Then wash out the mouth with this disinfectant fluid. Treat bad cases twice daily, others once a day.

Sore mouth is contagious. To prevent its spread dip the heads of the pigs in the same solution. Clean up the pens and disinfect them with some good commercial disinfectant. Do not put fresh litters in a pen once used for infected pigs unless it has been well-cleaned.

TRAINING FOR SHOW ANIMALS

Work is an Art and Requires Considerable Experience to Get Them at Best Advantage.

It is always a mistake to show animals that have not been properly trained. This may easily be done by taking a little time each day to get the animals to stand properly and go where directed. This work is an art, and it requires considerable experience to make an animal show to best advantage. Before show time the animal will require considerable exercise and this may be had by leading, which will also help to train the animals to respond to guidance with grace.

Reed Rakes Hoover.

Washington.—Senator Reed of Missouri checked the passage of the food bill again, with a violent speech. Likening the probable food controller, Herbert C. Hoover, to J. Rufus Wallingford, Reed called him "bold, open and notorious in his efforts to seek the place," said he was "cheerfully ignorant" of American conditions, and termed him a "successful and shrewd" food gambler. "Mr. Hoover is the author of that condition of which he complains and for which he now seeks a remedy."
